

End User Licence Agreement

The following terms and conditions apply to licences for standards publications (Singapore Standards and International/Overseas Standards) purchased online through the Singapore Standards eShop, or through quotations issued by Toppan Ecquaria Pte. Ltd., the appointed vendor for the Singapore Standards eShop.

A. Singapore Standards – Licence Terms for eCopy and Hardcopy Publications

1. This section sets out the terms governing your access to and use of the Singapore Standards publications you have purchased. For the purposes of this Licence, “Singapore Standards” means standards publications issued or made available under the Singapore Standards framework, including publications bearing the prefixes “SS”, “TR” and “WA”.
2. By downloading, accessing or otherwise using the Singapore Standards, you agree to be bound by this Licence and are responsible for ensuring full compliance with its terms and conditions.
3. No part of any Singapore Standards publication, including its text, tables, figures, graphics, images, updates, corrections, derivative works or ancillary materials, may be reproduced, republished, uploaded, posted, transmitted, distributed, adapted, incorporated, disclosed, commercially exploited, digitally integrated or otherwise used in any form or by any means without the prior written consent of Enterprise Singapore, except as expressly permitted under this Licence. Without prejudice to the foregoing, Singapore Standards publications are protected by copyright law and may also be protected by trademark law, laws relating to passing off, breach of confidence, contractual restrictions and other applicable intellectual property or proprietary rights, to the extent applicable, and you must not infringe, misappropriate or otherwise violate any intellectual property or proprietary rights subsisting in them or in any content incorporated in them.
4. Subject to payment of the applicable fee and compliance with this Licence, Enterprise Singapore grants you a non-exclusive, non-transferable, limited, single-user licence to access and use the purchased Singapore Standards publication.
5. The following additional conditions form part of this Licence. You may download an electronic copy of a Singapore Standard onto up to three of your personal devices and print up to three copies for your own reference. Each download must be made onto a separate personal device. Once the electronic copy has been downloaded three times, no further downloads will be permitted.

6. Each electronic copy of a Singapore Standard will contain a watermark identifying the purchaser, the purchaser's organisation, and the relevant purchase or download details.
7. You must keep all electronic and printed copies of the purchased publication secure and must not:
 - (a) sell, rent, lease, sublicense, lend, assign, transfer, translate, adapt, alter, modify, reproduce, copy, import, export or otherwise commercially exploit the publication, in whole or in part;
 - (b) incorporate, embed, encode, structure, transform or operationalise any part of the publication into another document, dataset, database, software application, workflow tool, rules engine, compliance system, automated decision-making tool, digital platform, service or other digital or non-digital environment, or create any derivative work based on it;
 - (c) store or make the electronic copy available on any shared drive, network server, cloud repository, shared system, online platform or other location accessible by any other person;
 - (d) provide, disclose, distribute or otherwise make the publication, in whole or in part, available to any other person without Enterprise Singapore's prior written consent.
 - (e) access, use or process the publication for or in connection with any machine-learning, artificial intelligence, text-and-data-mining, structured extraction, harvesting, benchmarking, automated knowledge extraction or analogous computational purpose, including training, fine-tuning, evaluating, prompting, querying, comparing, summarising, translating, reformulating or generating outputs derived from the publication, unless expressly authorised under a separate licence issued by Enterprise Singapore or the relevant rights holder; or
 - (f) remove, obscure or alter any watermark, copyright notice, attribution statement, acknowledgement, security feature or other proprietary notice appearing in or applied to the publication.
8. Unless expressly authorised under this Licence, any use of a Singapore Standards publication beyond the scope of the single-user licence granted under this Licence requires a separate written licence or permission from Enterprise Singapore and, where applicable, the relevant standards body, authorised distributor or other rights holder. This includes any reproduction, copying, distribution, disclosure, adaptation, translation, incorporation, digital integration, processing for artificial intelligence, machine-learning or text-and-data-mining purposes, commercial exploitation, multi-user access, network use, platform use, sublicensing, transfer or other use not expressly permitted under this Licence. Any additional licence or permission may be subject to separate fees, conditions and restrictions.

9. Where access to any Singapore Standards publication is provided through an online platform, any login credentials, passwords, access tokens or similar access details must be kept confidential and must not be shared with any third party or unauthorised user. If access credentials are shared or used in breach of this Licence, Enterprise Singapore or the relevant rights holder may suspend or terminate access, apply any applicable fee uplift or other contractual remedy, recover additional licence fees and pursue any other remedy available at law or in equity. Payment of any fee uplift or additional fee does not release you from your confidentiality, security or other obligations under this Licence.
10. If Enterprise Singapore or the relevant rights holder has reasonable grounds to believe that you are not complying with this Licence, it may, upon written notice, require you to provide reasonable information relating to your access to and use of the Singapore Standards publication, or conduct an audit, or require an audit by an independent third-party auditor. Any audit may be conducted during normal business hours at your premises or remotely as appropriate. Any underpayment of licence fees identified through an audit will be invoiced and must be paid in full. If an underpayment is identified, you must also reimburse the reasonable costs of the audit and reimburse those costs within 30 days after receiving written notice of the amount due.
11. Additional ISO-Specific Terms for ISO National Adoptions. The following additional terms form part of this Licence and apply only to the ISO-derived content incorporated in any Singapore Standard that is a national adoption of an ISO Standard, whether adopted identically or with modifications (an “ISO National Adoption”). For clarity, these additional terms do not replace or override the general Singapore Standards licence terms above and apply only to the ISO-derived content incorporated in the ISO National Adoption. In these additional terms, “ISO Content” means content originating from an ISO Standard and incorporated in an ISO National Adoption, together with any ISO-owned updates, corrections, amendments, derivative works, embedded materials, metadata, structure, tables, figures, graphics and ancillary materials. These additional terms apply only to the extent required to preserve the rights of ISO or its licensors in that ISO Content.

- (a) If there is any inconsistency between the general Singapore Standards licence terms and these additional ISO-specific terms, the general Singapore Standards licence terms govern the Singapore Standard as a whole, while these additional ISO-specific terms govern only the ISO Content incorporated in the ISO National Adoption.
- (b) For both printed and electronic versions, the licence rights apply to the content of the ISO National Adoption. The ISO Content is made available under licence and is not sold. Nothing in these additional terms affects the ownership of any separate Enterprise Singapore or Singapore Standards Council content, national foreword, annex, modification, adaptation, explanatory note or other Singapore-specific material included in the ISO National Adoption.
- (c) The ISO Content in an ISO National Adoption is protected by applicable intellectual property and proprietary rights. You must respect ISO's intellectual property rights in the ISO Content and must not infringe, misappropriate or otherwise violate those rights.
- (d) The ISO Content, together with any ISO-owned updates, corrections, derivative works or ancillary materials, and all intellectual property and proprietary rights in them, remain owned by ISO or its licensors. Where an ISO National Adoption is supplied in printed form, ownership of the physical copy may transfer to you, but the intellectual property rights in the ISO Content remain with ISO or its licensors.
- (e) Nothing in this Licence assigns, transfers or otherwise grants you any intellectual property rights in the ISO Content, except for the limited rights expressly set out in this Licence. If ISO or its licensors are no longer authorised to license the relevant ISO Content, or if an infringement claim arises in relation to that ISO Content, access to the affected ISO National Adoption may be withdrawn temporarily or permanently, and you must suspend or cease use of the affected ISO Content or ISO National Adoption as notified.
- (f) For an ISO National Adoption, the permitted use of the ISO Content is subject to the general Singapore Standards licence terms above and to any additional licence required by ISO, an ISO member body, an authorised distributor, Enterprise Singapore or the relevant rights holder. Nothing in these additional terms expands the single-user licence or the download, printing, security, non-disclosure, digital integration, AI, text-and-data-mining or other restrictions applicable to Singapore Standards generally.

12. Third-Party Standards Content in Other Singapore Standards. Certain Singapore Standards that are not national adoptions of ISO, IEC or other overseas standards may nevertheless contain content reproduced, adapted or incorporated from ISO, IEC or another overseas standards body with permission (“Third-Party Standards Content”). All intellectual property rights in the underlying Third-Party Standards Content remain vested in the relevant standards body, rights holder or its licensors, as applicable. Except as expressly permitted under this Licence or by applicable law, nothing in this Licence grants you any separate or additional licence directly from ISO, IEC, any other overseas standards body, or any of their respective licensors.
13. This Licence shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the Republic of Singapore, and the parties submit to the non-exclusive jurisdiction of the courts of the Republic of Singapore.
14. Requests for permission to use a Singapore Standards publication beyond the scope of this Licence should be submitted to:
